Trey Cocking Deputy Director League of Kansas Municipalities

Trey grew up in suburban Derby, Kansas. As the son of a Wichita police officer, a commitment to public service was instilled in him at an early age. Trey graduated from Washburn University with a Bachelor's of Science in Criminal Justice. He then obtained his Master of Public Service and Administration from the George Bush School of Government at Texas A&M University.

After graduation Trey accepted a management internship with the Sedgwick County Manager's Office in Wichita, Kansas. Upon completion of his internship, Trey was served a budget analyst in the Kansas Governor's Budget Office. For eight years Trey served as the City Manager in Atchison, Kansas and, prior to that served as the City Administrator of Cherryvale for three years.

Trey joined the League of Kansas Municipalities in August 2017 as the Deputy Director. In this capacity, Trey is the League's lead advocate for legislative issues and policy development. Trey was also in the Leadership Kansas class of 2017.

Trey enjoys spending time with his wife Jen and two children Jory and Will, traveling, cooking, swimming, and cheering on the Texas A&M Aggies, Washburn Ichabods, Kansas City Chiefs, and Kansas City Royals.
